ANNUAL REPORT.

Printed six months in in advance

and

This year the Insurance Department has departed from its well beaten path by compiling and publishing its annual report in March instead of taking until October to make delivery thereof. The statistics and facts may often be of little value after ten months have elapsed from the date insurance companies closed their books and the date of report.

in three vols. instead of of in one.

This is the first year the annual report has been printed in three volumes. The last few books have been very large and bulky, costing a good deal to work with and to mail or express. With the three divisions, fire and marine, life, accident and health and miscellaneous, we can frequently mail the one volume containing the information sought. Then, too, fire insurance companies, their employees and agents, seldom want any data relative to life insurance companies, and vice versa. One volume makes a more convenient and ready reference, and saves time for all who use it.

We append a few recommendations which we believe would, if adopted, improve insurance conditions in our State.

INSOLVENCY.

[Political Code § 602.]

Allowed legal impairment 25 per cent.

Under the existing law a company must be impaired in excess of twenty-five (25) per cent of its capital stock before the Department can cancel its license. Any impairment of capital, or even a material reduction in a company's surplus should give to the Insurance Department authority to cancel a license. Had we such a law on our statutes last year the Department could have saved the people of the State a hundred thousand dollars in premiums alone, not to dwell upon the misery and suffering which followed the Commonwealth Bonding and Casualty Insurance Company failure.

Such a law is criminal.

The Insurance Department must have more latitude than it now has when confronted with a company that is tottering on the brink of ruin. To permit by statute any company to take premiums from the people when the Department knows the company is gasping for every breath of its existence is nothing short of criminal legislation.

Invest Department with discretionary power.

This law should be so amended as to give to the Insurance Department ample discretionary power to meet any situation which even threatens a company's ability to return to its policyholders return premiums upon canceled policies.

CAPITALIZATION REQUIRED.

[Political Code § 594.]

Capital fully paid in.

The present law permits a company to do an insurance business when twenty-five (25) per cent of its authorized capital stock is paid in, and requires the balance of its authorized capital to be fully paid in at the end of its first licensed year. By this means a company can sell its policies with next to no funds on hand and, if it has hard luck or is poorly managed, it will fail before the year is out, or before it has had time to secure all of its capital.

No requirement is made of a company to provide a surplus; it can write business without this absolutely necessary article. Require surplus.

Competition in the various lines of insurance has become so sharp between the older, larger and more substantially entrenched companies, as to make it almost impossible for a new company with a small capital to gain a foothold. The increase in company failures can, no doubt, be largely traced to an insufficient capital and surplus when the company was launched upon a perilous sea of underwriting uncertainty. The California law is seriously defective in its present capital requirements and the Department earnestly prays that our next legislature protect its people by requiring all insurance companies to have a capital of at least two hundred and fifty thousand (250,000) dollars for any one class of business and one hundred thousand (100,000) dollars additional capital for each additional class which it may seek to do and, in no event, and irrespective of the number of lines of underwriting which it seeks to do, shall it have a free surplus of less than two hundred and fifty thousand (250,000) dollars. The law should also be amended so that a company could not secure a license from the Insurance Department until it could show its capital and surplus fully paid in and free of any indebtedness.

One cause of companies failing is limited capital.

MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE.

Some years ago a mutual fire insurance company organized and domiciled in a nearby state was instrumental in reading into our insurance laws an act governing this class of indemnity carriers. This act makes it very difficult to form new mutual companies and prohibits smaller foreign mutuals from entering the State. This law also discriminates against mutuals organized in California and permits foreign fire companies to do both a mutual and stock business without having any paid up capital stock.

Law shuts out California mutuals.

This law is known as "An act providing for the organization and management of mutual fire insurance corporations and associations and defining the same, and regulating the transaction of the business of mutual fire insurance in the State of California," etc. (Statutes of 1911, page 1342.) Name of act.

The act is defective in, and should be revised as to, the following items:

Section four should require that the first five hundred risks should not be subject to a single conflagration hazard, and the character of the risks should be approved by the Insurance Commissioner. Conflagration risk.

Policyholders fail to get profits.

Section five provides that profits may be allotted to the officers and commissions paid to agents; such an arrangement is contrary to the practices of all successful mutuals, for it is universally conceded that any profits of a mutual fire company should go to the policyholders and not to its employees.

Section six is of no protection to a policyholder against the conflagration hazard and it should be so revised as to give the Insurance Commissioner authority to supervise the further assumption of liability after it reaches certain conflagration limits.

Section seven discriminates in favor of mutuals domiciled in foreign states, and it should be repealed. This was the section upon which the Federal Court recently ruled against the Insurance Commissioner, thereby allowing a combination mutual and stock company to enter this State. This same company happens to hold an old charter in its home state, and it could not today secure such a charter, for its method of operation is in violation of all sound underwriting principles and practices.

Combination mutual and stock companies.

The remaining sections of the act should be repealed, and instead provisions should be made looking to the safety and perpetuation of the company rather than to finding ways and means to reward its employees.

Profits to employes.

The failures of mutuals can nearly always be traced to poor underwriting management or to the zeal of officers and employees to thrive and fatten at the policyholders' expense.

FIRE INSURANCE RATING.

Fire rate laws twice defeated.

Fire insurance rating bills have been introduced at the last two sessions of our legislature and, owing to their defective character, the insurance companies successfully defeated these measures at both sessions.

During the past few years a number of states have had special commissions investigate the systems of fire rating, and from their exhaustive reports it may be well to quote a few salient observations.

From the Illinois Commissioner's report we read:

"Fire waste a tax."

"For the purpose of this report we adopt the theory that the fire insurance rate is a tax, levied and collected by private enterprise, but still economically a tax and to be treated as such.

"Distribution a public service."

"It has come to be generally conceded that fire indemnity is not merchandise to be bought and sold in the open market, as flour or lumber, subject to the exigencies of trade and competition, but a public service, and as such subject to proper regulation, and at the same time that it is entitled to reasonable protection.

"Regulation without protection would be such tyranny as would be abhorrent to an enlightened people.

"State-made rates a mistake," says Illinois.

"We have assumed that regulation did not presuppose making rates by the state, and our investigation leads us to the conclusion that any attempt by the state to assume the function of creating or originating rates for fire insurance would be a serious mistake, both from the standpoint of practicability and of the constitutionality of a law for this purpose. We believe the state should not make the rates, but certainly should supervise the rates after they are made.

"If schedule rating is to be generally applied, the state should provide by law that all property should be thus rated, not indicating what system should be used or schedule applied, but in general terms requiring every company to rate its risks and all of them by some system extending over the whole state." but rate supervision recommended.

The New York Commission has the following to say:

"The difficult problems of the fire insurance business all center in one way or another about the subject of rates. This is an important matter in any business, but in fire insurance there are difficulties and peculiarities that make it particularly important. In a manufacturing business the price of an article is largely determined by the cost of production and this can, in general, be definitely ascertained. In a mercantile business the selling price is determined by the buying price. In the case of public utilities the fixing of rates is more difficult; more elements enter into the cost and more factors must be given consideration. "Fire insurance not a commodity", says New York.

"When one considers the almost infinite complexity of the hazards that are present in buildings—faulty construction of all sorts, excessive heights, large floor areas, openings between floors, dangerous processes, inflammable material, materials susceptible to damage—one can form some comprehension of the difficulties of rating. and,

"Theoretically the rate measures the destruction that would occur in some thousands of just such buildings under just such conditions; practically, what the underwriter has to work on is what has happened to buildings that in certain respects resembled this one, and the problem of rating is the adaption of this experience to the particular risk in hand. "Fire hazards complex and rating based

"Granted that the problem of rating is very difficult; the practical result is that it is impossible to make rates properly on the basis of a single company's experience. The experience even of the largest companies is not extensive enough to insure the proper working of the law of averages on all classes. It is very natural, then, and from this point of view desirable, that the companies should, for this purpose, combine; for not only can they thus make rates more effectively but, since rates on the same classes are needed by all, it would be a useless expense to have the work duplicated. So far, therefore, as the making of rates goes, it is desirable that the companies should combine; but in actual practice the combinations of the companies are not only to make rates but to maintain them. on experience of many companies and not upon that of a few." "Combinations necessary."

"This is a very dangerous power: state regulation of rates. It is conceivable that it might be used for political purposes, at any rate he who exercised the power would have effective pressure brought to bear upon him from only one direction, that is, to reduce the rates, while at least in certain emergencies the situation might demand an increase. "Politically made rates dangerous."

"It is evident that rating should not be placed in the hands of those whose interests are more restricted than the territory over which it is necessary to operate to secure an average. In the case of the conflagration hazard, this territory must certainly take in at least the whole of the United States. "Territory must be whole country."

"It is shown that there is intense competition among the members of rate-making organizations and that this condition differentiates such organizations from so-called trusts, that excessive rates are not desired as tending to lead to a dissolution of the combination and also to the organization of new competing companies, and that a strong competition exists in most parts of the country from non-board and mutual companies. "Competition now intense."

"This committee fails to find any condition which would warrant the extreme step of turning the rate making over to the state, and it does not recommend state regulation of rates beyond certain steps looking toward closer supervision of rate-making bodies and the securing of proper publicity. The committee believes that state interference with rates has not been beneficial and has been brought about upon the wholly theoretical grounds that combinations in fire insurance were a menace to the people which an actual investigation of the facts fails to disclose. This committee believes that a purely academic view of what combinations of fire insurance might do should not be allowed to usurp the place of what actual facts under a reasonable interpretation seem to show."

"Rate regulation by State must be confined to closer supervision."

The Wisconsin Commission reported that:

"Fire prevention the vital issue," says Wisconsin,

"In the course of the investigation it very soon became apparent that the real problem centers about the question of fire prevention. But this problem is not an isolated or separate one. It is intimately bound up with the question of rating and methods and expenses. Fire insurance and consequently expenses and rates are necessitated by fire losses. Rates

and, must be adjusted to meet the losses and expenses. Savings can only be effected in one or the other, or both, of these items.

"Insurance does not restore to community property lost through fire."

"Insurance is the distribution of losses. While it may replace the loss to the individual, it does not replace the property loss to the entire community. Yet it is an economic and commercial necessity, essential to the welfare of the individual and of the community as a whole. In the actual operations of business it has become practically compulsory, and property is now almost universally insured against loss by fire.

"Rates must be scientifically made."

"The adjustment of rates to hazard requires that rating be placed upon a scientific basis. Systems or schedules for basing rates upon hazards are an evolution from the old method of flat rating. They make charges for defects and make credits for improvements. These will be numerous and a comprehensive schedule necessarily must be a very extended and complex affair."

In the report of the Missouri Commission we find:

"Public impression is that rating bureaus annihilate competition," says Missouri,

"The commission found everywhere a great lack of knowledge as to the usefulness and necessity of rating bureaus. It became apparent throughout all the hearings that the general impression as to the rating bureau was that it was a means employed by the companies to do away with competition and to maintain high rates. The idea that the rating bureau was a scientific means of estimating and determining in the first instance, a basis for an equitable rating, was not possessed by the great mass of citizens.

but

"instead they promote solvency of companies."

"The interest of the insured is in the extent of the indemnity he secures, the soundness of the company carrying it and its cost to him. The interest of the company is in the maintenance of its soundness and solvency and its earnings and profits.

"An analysis of the interests of both parties discloses that their underlying principles are not as conflicting as we sometimes imagine, because both are interested in the soundness and solvency of the insurer and its ability to pay its losses and obligations. The business here differs from ordinary pursuits and transactions in that the public has no such interest

"Premiums and losses inseparable, in the person from whom it buys a commodity. There can be no doubt as to the wisdom or necessity of the insurer collecting in the way of premiums an amount, which when added to that part of its other income in which the policyholders are entitled to share, will enable it to pay its losses and reasonable necessary operating expenses.

and

future losses can't be definitely determined."

"One of the difficulties in fixing the price which the public shall pay for insurance lies in the fact that it is dealing with a future condition, and that its cost to the person furnishing it can not be definitely determined. In the manufacturing business the price of an article is largely determined by the cost of production, and in the mercantile business the selling price is determined by the buying price, but in the case of fire insurance, this cost or price is not known, and past experiences and the uncertain law of probabilities furnish the only guide in the matter."

If discrimination exists it is in town rate basis and not in single risks.

From these reports it is evident that there is some necessity of devising ways and means of preventing the fire insurance companies from placing an unfair ratio of the loss burden upon any one state or upon any one community in a state. Just how so important a matter can be legislated upon, it is difficult to determine. It is clear that the Insurance Department should at least have legal authority to call for such information and data as it may require for the purpose of determining that fire losses are distributed as equitably as possible.

Statistics should be gathered by Insurance Department.

A system should be devised that would give to the Insurance Department complete statistics on the premiums paid and the losses incurred in every city and town within the State. Discrimination, if any, which may exist within California, will be found in the basis rate for the communities, rather than in individual risks.

California loss ratio increasing.

During the past year the loss ratio in the State has materially increased and the Department should be sufficiently equipped to make investigations as to causes therefor. Upon determining these causes the Department should have authority to co-operate with the town or city officials affected with a view to bringing about improvements in fire departments, building construction, etc., that would tend to bring any particular community's loss ratio back to normal. In other words, the failure of a town or city to protect itself against fire should be penalized in its basis rate for its negligence or defects. By this method a town or city determines for itself whether it will invest its money in the payment of fire losses or in superior fire-fighting facilities or in a strict enforcement of its building construction and maintenance ordinances.

Towns should penalize.

The present schedule of fire rating could be more refined by adding penalties for defects which at small cost could be readily remedied. The careless and indifferent property owner is a menace to the ultimate prosperity of any community; therefore, the careful owner should favor any law which would exact from his less thrifty neighbor a heavy premium penalty for the dangerous fire hazards which that indifference has created and in which they both must live.

Careless owner a menace to prosperity of entire community.

FIRE MARSHAL LAW.

Data would help locate fire waste.

Most states have fire marshal laws under which causes of fires may be investigated. Valuable data and statistics are secured whereby the fire waste may be reduced. Incendiarism is ferreted out and perpetrators thereof properly punished.

Fire bugs would flee.

Such a law is needed in California, especially when considering the recent exposures of organized bands of "fire bugs" which have for years successfully operated in the larger cities in the northern and southern portions of the State.

Careful owners would profit.

The Insurance Department should be given sufficient funds and authority to establish a fire marshal department. The law should be free of legal technicalities and broad enough to permit of prompt and effective action if incendiarism is to be stamped out. If the careful property owner is to be rewarded for his care by way of reduction in his premium cost, then the careless property owner who increases the fire loss ratio must by law be brought into that class of careful owners. A fire marshal act would go a long ways toward reducing the cost of fire insurance in this State.

LOCAL AGENCY EMBEZZLEMENT.

Stolen premiums paid by assureds.

The insurance companies, under existing laws, are unable to legally recover premiums which a local agent may embezzle. The insuring public is under the impression that insurance companies bear this burden of loss. The companies may in the first instance, but in the ultimate cost the premiums so lost are woven into the cost of each policy purchased. The State as a whole is therefore called upon to pay defalcation losses in addition to fire losses.

Law needed.

To protect the insurance buyer from paying losses through embezzlement it is necessary to enact a law making it a crime for a local agent to defraud companies. Nearly all states now have such a law.

AGENTS' LICENSES.

[Political Code §§ 596, 633.]

These sections provide that every person soliciting insurance shall be licensed by the state upon the appointment by a licensed company to act as its agent and the payment to the Department of a fee of one (1) dollar.

Fitness of agent should be determined by Insurance Department.

The law should be amended in such manner as to require the agent, solicitor or broker to satisfy the Insurance Department that he is qualified to so act, and his fitness to do so should be determined by the Insurance Department. Each person, firm or corporation engaged in the insurance business, other than life, health and accident, should be required to have annually but one license and the fee therefor should cost not less than ten (10) dollars.

File application.

The Department should require the agent or solicitor to supply it with such information as it deems necessary in determining his qualifications to act as said agent. The right to revoke such license should be vested in the Insurance Department.

Numerous complaints filed by assureds

The experience of the Department in handling the many complaints which reach it daily clearly proves that the present law, vesting all rights of agency appointments in companies, is inimical to the interests of the insuring public. The corporate carriers fasten upon the unsophisticated policy purchaser all burden of proof as to what unscrupulous agents may say as to policy conditions or as to payment of premiums. Repeatedly companies employ men whom they know to have dishonest records and then saddle the expense of that experience upon the gullible public. Insurance is based on trust, and there is no room in it for the man who is forever dishonest. The state fails in its mission as a supervising power when it can not by legal force rid the business of the tricksters and rogues who filch from its innocent and inexperienced citizens. Our present supervisorial system attempts to insure solvency of corporate carriers and then lets down the bars by permitting any and all sorts and conditions of men to peddle insurance; many of whom, because of inexperience, can not write a complete coverage for an assured, and many more who are so adept at deception that it is very easy to fool the assured. More than forty states now have laws vesting in their insurance departments the power of appointing and removing agents. Unscrupulous agents of a company which recently failed were so far removed from control of the Insurance Department as to be able to get away with many thousands of dollars which rightfully belonged to loss claimants and trusting policyholders. These agents, today, are operating for other companies and plying their trade for the benefit of themselves and the companies who see fit to employ them; the only redress a policyholder has is to charge his losses to experience and then proceed to condemn the whole insurance business as a snare and a delusion.

public pays dearly for dealing with inexperienced

and

unscrupulous or dishonest local agents or solicitors.

INSURANCE BROKERS.

California is without a law determining the legal status of an insurance broker, and at present he is more or less of an irresponsible agency, practically detached from any licensed company.

The companies deny responsibility for his acts on the assumption that he is the agent of the insured rather than of any particular company. This means the companies frequently deny a just liability, which the assured is under the impression it has assumed and, furthermore, the payment of premiums by the assured to dishonest or irresponsible brokers leads to many complications for the assured.

Irresponsible and without legal status.

A law should be enacted which would give the broker a legal status and place upon him, in conjunction with the companies, the same responsibilities which the insuring public enjoys through the local agency medium.

An annual license fee of ten (10) dollars should be paid to the Insurance Department for every broker licensed, and he should be required to file a written application, blanks to be furnished by the Department.

Fee $10. Department to approve applications.

ANTI-DISCRIMINATION.

The actual result of rebating commissions or premiums is little understood by the insuring public. Insurance cost is based upon loss experience. Premiums are paid by a thousand men to pay a loss to one man. The policies issued to these Discrimination injures all.

thousand men contain a uniform premium consideration, upon which a uniform rate of commission is paid to agents or solicitors. If, perchance, one of the agents gives a portion of his commission to one man or to ten men out of a group of a thousand, he by so doing discriminates in favor of the few at the cost of the many.

and

All insurance premiums are trust funds, mostly held by private corporations for the protection of the insured, and it is for this reason that we regard insurance premiums as being in the nature of a tax, and as a rule the insured who secured a rebate also will expect to drive a fast bargain with the tax assessor.

helps none

The agents who make a practice of rebating can not and do not render to the policy purchaser the same degree of service as does the agent who sells his policy contracts for the price and amount stipulated in these contracts.

and

An anti-discrimination law would do more to protect the policy purchaser than any agency law that is now on the

if legally prohibited statute books of California. Furthermore, the logical sequence following the operation of such a law would be to reduce the insurance cost uniformly rather than by hit and miss and to a favored few as is now the practice. The expense of conducting the insurance business is today seriously wasteful, and the day is not far distant when the public will require a change in the present system.

will pay less.

An anti-discrimination law is not for the protection of agents and solicitors but must inure to the benefit, protection and profit of every policy purchaser. It is not only an ethical advancement, but a step towards business economy.

APPROPRIATION.

[Political Code § 591.]

The present appropriation of $30,000 is wholly inadequate for the needs of the Department. Its normal development has been seriously retarded and its efficiency impaired because of insufficient funds with which to properly serve the insuring

Department in need of more funds public. The insurance department of the state of New York has an appropriation of over a half million (500,000) dollars and this enables it to perform a character of service which has placed it second to none in the world. The work which existing laws now require the California Department to perform can not be accomplished for less than a hundred thousand (100,000) dollars, and should the next legislature enact laws and also a requiring new and additional service by the Department even this large increase would be insufficient to pay the bills. The last legislature enacted one insurance law which, were it being properly administered, would be costing the Department not less than $75,000 annually; as it is, we have a law which is being emasculated because of the Department's shortage in funds.

revolving fund.

A "revolving fund" of not less than one thousand (1,000) dollars is needed to finance the Department's current expenses. The cost of expressage, postage, traveling expenses and many other incidentals is now defrayed by deductions from fees which by law should be transmitted direct to the state treasurer without deductions.

$1,000,000 tax yield through department, out of which it is allowed $30,000.

The insurance companies will this year pay to the state treasurer in taxes and license fees over one million (1,000,000) dollars, and out of this immense taxation is appropriated thirty thousand (30,000) dollars to the Insurance Department for supervisorial services in attempting to keep companies solvent and holding them to the letter and spirit of the State's laws. Such a balance in ordinary business would be considered a travesty. The old axiom that "you can't get something for nothing" holds good even in the cost of operating a state's insurance department.

ANNUAL REPORT.

[Political Code § 337.]

Print not less than 500 copies.

The law requires the Department to print not less than one thousand copies of its annual report and this number is far in excess of the number distributed or used. The law should be made to read "not less than five hundred copies shall be printed." The printing of this report now takes $3,000 out of our meager appropriation of $30,000. Such unnecessary expense is a serious waste of funds.

EXAMINATIONS.

[Political Code § 597.]

Examiners incompetent.

The Department has had in its employ as examiners men who were without insurance experience and were inexperienced insurance accountants; as a consequence it was imperative for the Department to employ professional insurance examiners and actuaries to delve into the operations of a few companies whose reputations had become unsavory.

Sound companies profit.

Furthermore, some California companies doing business throughout the United States sought examinations at the hands of the recognized experts which the Department had employed. Such companies realizing that a real examination made by independent experts would create in the minds of their policyholders a greater sense of security and incidentally establish for them an advantageous place in the insurance world.

Weak companies falsify and Those companies which had for several years filed under oath falsified statements of their financial condition, and by so doing gained permission from year to year to continue their reckless underwriting practices, naturally resented an examination by an expert capable of laying bare some of their trade secrets. These same companies freely criticised the Department for putting them to the expense of paying big fees to experts and paying traveling expenses across the continent.

That the Department was justified in the expense is clearly shown by the results of those examinations. One company has since failed for several hundreds of thousands of dollars and had the federal court not interferred with the Department's plan to cancel said company's license, California indemnity buyers would have saved over a hundred thousand dollars. Several other companies have been forced to make good impairments out of their capital stock and others have been forced to consolidate, while still others have been required to align their underwriting practices on the side of safety.

cloud issue by criticism.

To develop department.

The Department has plans to develop its examination department and to that end has sought the aid of the Civil Service Commission in securing college graduates in actuarial science and advanced accounting. The Civil Service Commission held an examination last February.

To analyze annual reports.

With a trained and competent corps of examiners it will be unnecessary to employ outside experts and, furthermore, these men will so analyze the annual reports filed by every licensed company as to ferret out the weaknesses of a company's operations. This is a work that has never been performed by the California Department and its adoption should materially increase the protection to policyholders, for it may lead to a "locking of the door before the horse is stolen."

Examination costs should be borne by State.

The Department is required by law to collect from a company in advance the approximate cost to make an examination; irrespective of how small the cost may be, the plan of requiring companies to pay examination costs leads to criticism, and it is eminently unfair and burdensome upon a business that is already overburdened with taxation cost. The existing law should be repealed. The Department should have sufficient funds with which to do this work without levying further tribute from the company to be examined.

Our recommendations to Insurance Commissioners' Examination Committee.

In a recent letter to the Chairman of the Examination Committee of the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners, this Department had the following to say upon the subject of examinations:

"In your circular letter appealing to all commissioners to aid you and your committee in conducting examinations, you advance the following valuable thought:

> 'It is worthy of your special consideration and co-operation and, in my opinion, means as much for the success and general approval of the work of the insurance commissioners as any work undertaken by our convention.'

Intense competition makes necessary rigid examinations.

"That we are today facing conditions which require us to heed your timely admonition no one can doubt. It is apparent that through a long period of intense cultivation the business of underwriting is being rapidly reduced to an issue of the survival of the fittest. Every year it becomes more difficult for the new and smaller companies to successfully thread their way through the mazes of minimum expense cost and seasoned underwriting experience. Some states have recently enacted minimum rate laws for workmen's compensation insurance, partly on the theory that such laws would insure solvency of carriers. Such a line of approach to a question so far reaching is freighted with many grave dangers. A few states enacting such laws penalize their policyholders by permitting competition to regulate rates where such laws are not in effect.

Present system defective.

"From the discussion had at our December convention it is apparent that our present system of examinations is defective, and possibly the following may be a few reasons therefor:

Meager funds results in added expense.

"Some departments are compelled by law to defray examination costs from their meager appropriations, and this results in the employment of inexperienced or indifferent examiners; other departments aware of such conditions naturally doubt the value of the work turned out and must in self-protection make examinations on their own account.

Biased experts.

"Some states require companies to pay departments for examination costs and, if such departments are poorly equipped for the work, they may, unknowingly, employ outside experts with questionable records, and this results in further examinations by more experienced departments.

Politics.

"At times some companies may be so involved in dishonest politics in some states as to dominate an insurance department's activities and thereby color or suppress an examiner's report. When such a condition becomes generally known additional examinations are sure to be made by departments free from such bondage.

Politics affords an "honest living" to incompetents.

"In states where insurance is the football of dishonest politics it frequently happens that several 'would be' examiners are put on the 'trail of the lonesome' insurance companies in order to pay off political obligations by giving several ne'er-do-wells an 'honest living.' This results in more examinations by competent departments wanting the facts.

Necessity leads to increased cost.

"It sometimes happens that a new commissioner comes to a department with its personnel so sunken in the sticky mire of political intrigue and so fortified by an inadequate or indifferently administered civil service law as to compel him to employ high-priced experts. This condition results in making the examination costs higher than necessary had the department been ably and honestly managed.

Home companies demand.

"Our discussion also brought out the thought that some departments resented other departments making examinations of their home companies on the ground that an outside department could not be in the same sympathetic accord with the company's management and, therefore, would not be as lenient or as fair as would the home department. As a matter of cold fact, we are forced to admit that an insurance company to be successful must by the very nature of its business secure volume and also extend its operations over many states and, therefore, the more restricted its field the more need of rigid supervision.

Plan of securing valuations of stocks and bonds.

"In looking for remedies to cure some of the evils outlined above, our attention is attracted to our present plan of securing uniform valuations for stocks and bonds held by insurance companies. The New York Insurance Department annually employs at a fixed fee, a stock and bond valuation expert who fixes the valuations of securities owned or held by insurance companies. Each insurance department is supplied with this data for which it pays the New York Department by way of a flat donation or contribution made through our Convention. By this plan all departments use the same valuation for any one security and each department arrives at the same result in computing this element of a company's assets. Instead of this data costing each department several thousand dollars it would average less than two hundred dollars were it fairly distributed.

A central bureau.

"A plan similar in scope to that now in use for securing valuations could be evolved for examination work. A central examination bureau could be established which would make examinations of all insurance companies or associations doing an interstate business.

Would make examinations uniform.

"It would be free of politics, local, state or national. The character of its work would be uniform and free from local coloring or influence. All companies in all states would be measured by the same standards. It could not delay publishing reports as an accommodation to some involved company, neither could it effect compromising situations. Its employees would be so well trained that they could detect signs of 'failing health' long before the patient could 'pass away.' Its manager could lay out its work in such manner as to make examinations regularly and whenever required.

"The work of the bureau would be divided into departments with a sufficient number of experts attached to each department to make it highly efficient and extremely sensitive to any danger signs a company might not fly. Such a bureau should attract the best talent on the market, for employment would be permanent, free from dishonest politics and poorly administered civil service, and would offer opportunities to every employee for merit advancement.

Enlisting services of experts in each line of underwriting

"This bureau could collect the cost of its work and maintenance from the states, or from the companies, whichever plan would seem to best meet the situation.

which would result in detecting immediately signs of "failing health."

"The examination committee of our convention could act as the executive committee of this bureau. It could employ a manager and assistants, who would be under the immediate supervision of your committee acting in an ex officio capacity.

"Several states could simultaneously enact laws which would enable them to consolidate their examination work with others and this would lead to the formation of such a bureau and the prestige which this bureau's work would establish would soon result in all states coming into the bureau.

"The above plan will no doubt be too radical for some of my fellow commissioners to even entertain, however, we are rapidly reaching a point where something must be done along the lines which I respectfully present to your committee for its usual patient and careful consideration. The word insurance will always bear a bogus stamp until examinations all over this country become real and vital as factors in insurance supervision. Co-operation, organization and uniformity are the warp and woof of the insurance business; while isolated single entities invariably go down to defeat and ruin."

COMMISSIONER'S AND DEPUTY'S SALARIES.

[Political Code § 589.]

Salary increases necessary.

The annual salary of the Insurance Commissioner is four thousand (4,000) dollars. This amount will not hold the type of man which the office requires. Neither is the salary in keeping with those paid by the State in other branches of insurance, and is far less than many salaries paid in other departments of state government where less experience is required. The same remarks apply to the deputy, whose salary is now two thousand seven hundred (2,700) dollars. As an investment proposition the insuring public would do well to double the salaries for both of these positions.

ATTORNEY.

[Political Code § 596*a*.]

Under this section the Insurance Commissioner is required to submit all documents, instruments and certificates to the attorney general offered by any company seeking admission to this State.

Examination of admission papers.

These documents are examined by the Insurance Department when submitted with the company's application, and if found incorrect are returned to the company for correction. This Department never submits incomplete or incorrect documents of application to the attorney general's office; therefore, that official's examinations are necessarily perfunctory and in great measure valueless.

Search laws of foreign states.

The vital service which an attorney should perform in the admission of a company is to search the laws of that state from which the company hails; and from that search determine its ability to observe our state laws as a corporation chartered under the laws of a foreign state. The company's tax, license and other status should then and there be determined by the Department's attorney. This is not now done.

Cost of present service.

During the past two years the legal work of the Department has been very heavy and of a character calling for mature legal experience. The work has been promptly and ably performed with highly satisfactory results to the insuring public and at a cost far less than is usual for professional services of like character.

The Department should retain the services of the attorney it now has under the existing arrangement, and in addition it should have a younger attorney occupying one of the offices attached to the Department. Such an arrangement would permit of greater legal research work, would better supplement the work of the more experienced legal adviser, and would make an attorney available upon a moment's notice.

To increase legal efficiency.

Other departments of the State have attorneys occupying offices with the departments to which they are attached. The superintendent of banks has four, more or less, and the Insurance Department should be made equally efficient legal wise.

Our appropriation should be made sufficient to care for this much needed service.

CIVIL SERVICE.

Deputy and three assistants should not be under civil service.

The Insurance Commissioner should have legal authority to appoint his deputy and three assistants and to fix the salaries of the assistants. The Civil Service law should apply only to clerical and minor positions. A Commissioner is seriously handicapped by being compelled to accept as his immediate co-workers men who neither understand nor are in sympathy with his administration. The work of his assistants must be of a confidential nature, requiring loyalty and readiness to make personal sacrifices if need be in order to make the Department progressive and efficient.

Present system impossible.

The importance and volume of work which comes to the Department can not be performed by one or two men and for this reason the Commissioner should be allowed to pick and choose men who can be assistants in more than name only. The law should be revised to fit the needs of the Department along the lines suggested.

INSURANCE TAXATION.

Fraternals and mutuals not taxed, then why others?

The taxing of insurance premiums is a method of contributing to the cost of governmental expense which is little understood by the insuring public. That such is the case one has but to remember that all assessment, fraternal, fire mutuals, interinsurers, state funds and farmers' fire alliances are exempt from taxes on premiums. If the principle of penalizing citizens for being frugal and provident is good social economics for those insured in corporation carriers, it is equally sound for those insured in mutuals. As a matter of social welfare all carriers should be put on the same basis.

Each year $15,000,000 is paid in taxes on premiums in the U. S.

There seems to be no real defense for the taxation of premiums. The system originally grew out of the cost of maintaining insurance departments and, apparently, it proved so simple a process of raising revenue that it has grown to vast proportions. In California this year the taxes and fees derived from insurance carriers will exceed a million dollars, while the appropriation for the Insurance Department is thirty thousand dollars.

That sum would buy life insurance for over 700,000 families.

The people can not logically regard a life or fire premium as they would a savings account in a bank. It may be good social economics to tax a bank account, but surely the man who provides for the daily needs of his widow and family through insurance should not be placed in the same class as a capitalist. Taxes, as far as practicable, should be raised upon those things which may add to our comfort, and not on insurance which keeps our families out of orphanages and almshouses.

The National Convention of Insurance Commissioners has gone on record as follows:

National convention of insurance commissioners.

"Life insurance taxes either increase the cost of insurance or diminish the amount of it. In the one case they fall upon the policyholders; in the other case on the beneficiaries of the insured.

"The mere desire to raise revenue does not warrant imposing upon life insurance a special form of premium income tax.

"The state should insist upon the faithful conservation of life insurance funds and their application to their intended use. It should be as reluctant itself to divert them from their intended use as to permit individuals to employ them for political purposes or in extravagance of management."

In the United States Senate, Charles Sumner said:

Charles Sumner: "Tax upon tax."

"Now, what is proposed? A tax on premiums. What are the premiums? The premiums are themselves a tax. The premiums constitute the tax which the person pays for his insurance,

"This is contrary to all sound policy. Here you are proposing to tax those who have taxed themselves that the nation might not have to support them. You are pulling down the pillars of the temple. You are undermining the structure."

And Senator Sherman of Illinois had the following to say:

Senator Sherman: "Life insurance should be cheapened and exempt from taxation."

"Life insurance is a protection. It is not bought for pecuniary gain. It ought to be cheapened and made easier. Instead of laying burdens on it, the government ought to exempt it and the companies writing it from taxation. * * * Life insurance is a device by which such defaults may be avoided, a process by which society may be relieved of what ultimately may be a public burden.

"The difficulty is to appreciate the fact that in life insurance there is another great accumulation of securities, so wise in its obligation to society, so beneficent in its influence upon the family, so powerful in its assistance to the state, so destructive in its opposition to want, to ignorance, to crime, that its appeal for exemption, from further taxation, is as much entitled to consideration in this chamber as any that can come before a legislative body. Instead of being further taxed, it ought to be relieved of some of its burdens."

LIABILITY RESERVES.

[Political Code § 602*a*.]

Present method

After some years of experience it becomes apparent that our existing reserve law for liability insurance is in need of revision. The method of computing loss reserves is to assume that a certain percentage of the premium will ultimately be consumed in the payment of losses which may occur during the long term of the policy, or in the payment of loss claims which have actually developed, and for which the companies may take several years to liquidate. In order to provide for both of these contingencies, the company is required to set up as a liability in its financial statement these known and estimated amounts.

by premium ratios

When the workmen's compensation law was drafted, the loss reserve was graduated by increasing the ratio through a period of three years from 70 per cent to 75 per cent, and there has been a great deal of discussion at the recent meetings of the Insurance Commissioners Convention as to what percentage the loss reserve should ultimately be for this class of underwriting, and at the present time it will be difficult to determine what ratio should be used for California.

is inadequate

The general liability law fixes the loss to be paid at 54 per cent of the premium income. The actual experience of all general liability carriers indicates that the loss ratio is nearer 65 per cent. A great many carriers who have only a few years experience are complying with the legal 54 per cent requirement—when their own experience indicates a much higher loss ratio.

and

The above results indicate that an assumed loss ratio applicable to all companies alike produces a very unsatisfactory result. As the underwriting methods employed by the various carriers are decidedly different, it is to be expected that they will not experience a similar loss ratio; hence it seems inadvisable that unpaid claims be computed on assumed loss ratio.

The plan as utilized in other lines of insurance of estimating the unpaid claims is to estimate the outstanding liability case by case and set the total up as the unpaid losses. While this has proven very unsatisfactory because the companies will underestimate their loss liability, still it has many decided merits not included in the percentage plan of estimation. In the case method, the estimated liability as of a previous year can be compared with the claims payments and the estimated liability of the current year for the purpose of determining whether a company is underestimating or overestimating its losses. It seems advisable that any loss reserve law on compensation or liability business should provide for this comparison and should require that the companies be guided by the percentage of underestimates or overestimates as indicated.

can be improved upon.

INTERINSURANCE.

Law defective.

An act defining certain classes of contracts for the exchange of indemnity was passed in 1911 which is known as the Interinsurance law. It has proven defective in that it has been used for other than fire insurance lines; the only underwriting class which it was meant to cover when it was made a law.

Exempt from other laws.

Section nine of the act reads: "Individuals, partnerships and corporations exchanging reciprocal or interinsurance contracts providing indemnity among each other shall be exempt from the provisions of other insurance laws of this state," and it is under this section that several organizations writing, or desirous of writing, workmen's compensation insurance, claim to be exempt from setting up the reserves required under section 602*a*.

Should not be licensed to write workmen's compensation.

All other workmen's compensation carriers must throw about the injured employee an additional safeguard by setting aside for the payment of losses three-fourths of the premiums collected. This amount is regarded in the financial statement of carriers as a liability and therefore is a vital factor in determining solvency.

No reserves set up.

The setting aside of sufficient funds with which to meet payments due injured wage-earners, or their families, for several years to come, is more necessary with interinsurance carriers than with any other organizations and for the following reason: A hundred employers may pay the premiums into an interinsurance association just so long as the losses do not exceed the original premiums paid, but let it become necessary to levy assessments and they would soon drop out of the association; then what would become of the payments due injured employees and their widows for the months and years to come?

The Insurance Department has for the past year or more refused to license interinsurance associations for workmen's compensation insurance under the existing law and thus far no licenses have been issued.

The law is full of pitfalls and is not in keeping with sound principles in any line of underwriting. It should be amended to fit working conditions.

FRATERNAL INSURANCE.

Statements misleading.

Fraternal benefit societies have not until within the last few years considered the liability on outstanding certificates on living members. The result was that previously, fraternal benefit societies filed statements that showed a good financial condition, when in fact they were seriously insolvent.

Cause of failure.

The failure to prepare for this obligation on the outstanding certificates has displayed itself in the extremely heavy losses experienced by the fraternal benefit societies. The losses of these societies have been so extensive that many of the orders have been forced into insolvency. One order, which at one time had 20,000 members and has paid about $25,000,000 in claims in this State, has been forced into the bankruptcy court this year. When this order was flourishing, it collected only sufficient funds to care for the current mortality. This failure to provide for the liability on outstanding certificates of the living members is the cause for the present embarrassing condition of this order.

"Mobile law"

The 1911 legislature passed an act for the purpose of controlling these fraternal benefit societies. This act is entitled "An act for the regulation and control of fraternal benefit societies."

requires mortality liabilities

The intent of this act is that the fraternal companies shall file with this Department a statement showing the amount of liability on the outstanding certificates. This liability is to be computed in accordance with standard mortality tables and with a reasonable rate of interest.

to be

Beginning with the year 1912 these fraternal benefit societies had to show the ratio of their contingent assets to the contingent liabilities, and these liabilities had to include this liability on outstanding certificates. If the ratio of solvency be less than 90 per cent after December 31, 1920, then these fraternal benefit societies are required to increase this ratio 5 per cent every three years. This requirement is comparatively lenient and ultimately will be effective in placing the fraternal societies on a solvent basis.

reduced 5 per cent annually and such law is in

At present there is an effort on the part of the fraternal insurance companies to be allowed to be released from this 5 per cent requirement. This effort should be discouraged, and every possible effort should be made to place these orders on a solvent and sound actuarial basis.

the best interests

Many of the fraternal societies, under the necessity of complying with this fraternal law, have requested that the commission allow as assets certain items that have never previously been considered by any insurance carrier.

of every policyholder

As one example, they have requested that they be allowed, as an asset, the present value of their future interest earnings over and above 4 per cent, which is the usual rate of interest used in computing their outstanding reserve liability. It needs but a moment's thought to demonstrate that it is very inadvisable for an insurance carrier to display such a fictitious asset as the present value of its excess future interest-earning power. We have but to look at the present European situation to realize the inadvisability of assuming that money will earn a greater interest than 4 per cent per annum. In fact, there are many conservative investors who would be glad to receive even this rate of interest on their European investments. Hence it is advisable that fraternal benefit societies be required to comply with all of the present insurance laws relative to investments.

The Casualty Company of America filed its December 31, 1915, convention form annual report, computing its loss reserves on the basis of 54% for workmen's compensation insurance, which is the New York standard. However, the California loss reserve law requires that compensation reserves be figured on a basis of 74% of the premium income.

We notified the company that all workmen's compensation carriers must make their returns in accordance with the California law upon the basis of 74%. The company notified us under date of April 20th that it was undergoing an examination by the New York State Insurance Department and that until this examination was completed it would be impossible to send us a corrected statement in conformity with California's legal requirements.

From an analysis of the statement filed we are led to believe that the capital of the company would be considerably impaired if the reserves on all workmen's compensation business were computed on a 74% basis instead of the 54% basis. All other companies have reported on a 74% basis in this State.

We are corresponding with the company and the New York Insurance Department with reference to the efforts now being made by the company to rehabilitate its finances.

Under date of April 29th the New York Insurance Department writes us as follows:

"This acknowledges receipt of your telegram of April 29th, in reference to the Casualty Company of America. This department has not as yet completed its examination of this company, but we expect to have our final figures within a short time.

On April 18, 1916, the directors of the company unanimously approved a plan, which is to be submitted to the stockholders on May 4th, which provides for the reduction of the capital from $750,000.00 to $300,000.00, thereby transferring $450,000.00 to surplus. Simultaneously, the capital will be restored to $750,000.00. It is further proposed to increase the capital to $1,000,000.00, by the issuance of 25,000 shares (par value $10.00) at $2.00 per share, thereby adding an additional $250,000.00 to surplus. This plan will result in adding $950,000.00 of new money to the company's funds, of which $700,000.00 will go to surplus account and $250,000.00 to capital account. Should this plan be consummated, and the officers of the company have given us assurances that it will be, the company's financial condition will be materially strengthened and a substantial surplus provided for.

I realize the fact that you are bound, under the provisions of the California law, to require companies to maintain a reserve on their compensation business of 74% of the earned premiums. I believe that the compensation business of the Casualty Company of America on December 31, 1915, does not warrant this high reserve; that is, if this business is reserved on that ratio, the company will have in its reserve a considerable profit, which in reality would belong to the surplus account.

I am pleased to note your assurances that you desire to fully co-operate with the company and not to work any unnecessary hardship upon it. My feeling in this matter is the same, especially in view of the fact that the stockholders have sufficient faith in its future to invest at this time $950,000.00.

I shall keep you fully advised in regard to the situation."

In view of the above explanation this department will give the company a reasonable amount of time in which to provide for sufficient funds to meet the reserve laws of California.
